

Juan Rodriguez

Dr. Susannah Chewning

ENG 101-020

23 January 2005

Response to The Canterbury Tales

If this were a real paper, the text would start here. The paper will contain your ideas, as well as quotations from the text you are discussing. If it is a text whose author you know, you will follow the quotation with the author's name and page (or line) numbers in parentheses (and sometimes the title, as below). For example, "Whan that aprill with his shoures soote" (Chaucer, General Prologue 1). In the case where you don't know the author's name you include only the title and page number "The Emperor sits in an orchard wide, / Roland and Olivier by his side" (Chanson de Roland viii.8-9). At the end of the paper you will also include a Works Cited page, see below.

Works Cited

Chaucer, Geoffrey. General Prologue. The works of Geoffrey Chaucer. 2nd. ed. Editor: F.N.

Robinson. Boston, MA: Houghton Mifflin, 1957. 17-29.

The Song of Roland Tr. John O'Hagan. Epic and Saga. New York: P. F. Collier & Son, 1910.